

Manager Guide

Version 1.4

Owner: Sarah Chen

Department: Human Resources

Internal document. Readable by all employees.

§1.0 — About This Guide

This guide supports people managers in applying Acme Corporation's employment policies consistently. It summarises the approvals a manager may grant without escalation, and the situations that require Human Resources involvement.

§3.1 — Time-off Guidance

Managers may approve up to fifteen (15) days of casual leave annually.

Approval should take into account team coverage, project deadlines, and any pattern of short-notice absence. Managers are not required to justify approval of leave within this limit, but should record the decision in the self-service portal so that balances stay accurate.

§3.2 — When to Escalate

Requests that exceed the manager's approval limit, or that follow a pattern of repeated short-notice absence, should be escalated to Human Resources before a decision is communicated to the employee.

Managers should also escalate any request where the employee disputes their recorded leave balance, as balance discrepancies often indicate a policy or system issue rather than an individual error.
